

The Chelsea Old Town Hall, the location for the London Biennale 2013

The London Art Biennale is a museum quality exhibition curated by the Gagliardi & Partners and the Chianciano Art Museum. The exhibition is not theme based thus allowing for all artistic movements to be presented.

The London galleries, critics and collectors will be able to see and appreciate artworks from all over the world, from Australia to the USA, from Norway to Italy with different cultures, styles, ideas, artistic expressions that represent the art world in its global entirety. The famous London galleries will all be invited to see the Biennale, which is hosted very near to their headquarters and gallery windows. The artworks will be seen in their ideal setting, curated by experts to perfection, free to give the viewer the maximum of their artistic impact, following the tradition of the exhibitions presented by this organisation which values the promotion of art and culture as its most important achievement.

The London Art Biennale is a place where art is respected and the best testimonials are the previous exhibitions staged by the same team such as "Figures, from Realism to Abstraction" at the Victoria & Albert Museum, the Biennale and International Award of Chianciano at the Art Museum of Chianciano and "Italian Views" at the Lord Leighton Museum in London. The presentation of artwork will be carried out as is done in important museums and institutions, galleries will be able to see the works of new artists and to expand their portfolios, museum curators will be exposed to the art of the world in a setting where the artists are rigorously selected and the exhibition is staged to maximise the visual impact of each work.

Image Above: Exhibition at the Chelsea Old Town hall in celebration of the 25th Anniversary of the Gagliardi Gallery in London, 2004